The statute provides that each Board was instructed when and how to kill Tavshanijan. He had no personal enunity against the rich merchant and no personal object in putting him out of the way. It is quite probable that he will tell who instructed him in the murder and furnished him with the funds to come on here from Lowell, Mass., for its acaccomplishment. Whether or not this will connect Martougessian, the unfrocked Armenian priest, with the crime remains to be seen.
